ABSTRACT

This document consists of an annotated bibliography that lists published educational materials for children and young people about the sailing canoe "Hokule'a" and such related topics as Polynesian canoes, migration, and wayfinding. It lists curriculum materials as well as selected tradebooks, periodical articles, films, and videotapes. The list was compiled for teachers, librarians, counselors, "kupuna," coaches, scout leaders, "kumu hula," and others who work with school children and young people. Each note includes the item's location and its call number. The first section lists books and contains 16 entries. The next section is for periodicals. It contains six entries, five of which are articles from National Geographic Magazine. The third section gives audio visual resources. This part has 14 entries, 13 of which deal with the voyages of the Hokule'a. The other film is a documentary tracing the routes of the early ancestors of the Polynesians using evidence from linguistics, archeology, and botany. The final section is a directory of libraries and other educational agencies. Nine libraries in Hawaii are listed with their addresses and telephone numbers. Seven other educational agencies are listed, four of which are units of the Hawaii Department of Education. (DK)

Introduction

This annotated bibliography lists published educational materials for children and young people about the sailing canoe Hōkūle'a and such related topics as Polynesian canoes, migration, and wayfinding. It was compiled for teachers, librarians, counselors, kupuna, coaches, scout leaders, kumu hula, and other people who work with schoolchildren and young people. It lists curriculum materials as well as selected tradebooks, periodical articles, films, and videotapes.

Each note includes the item's location and its call number. The collections of the public library system and the university libraries at Manoa have been checked for every item listed. A public library may have several copies of an item. All sections—reference, juvenile, young adult, Hawaiian—should be checked for a given selection. At the University of Hawaii, the Hawaiian and Pacific collections may hold duplicate copies of some books or articles. Many items may also be available in school libraries.
